

Global Sustainability Statement

Colliers Macaulay Nicolls and its partner companies acknowledge our responsibility, as one of the world's largest real estate service providers, to provide leadership in sustainability for the built environment, business and our global society.

We are in a unique position to have a dramatic positive impact on the environment while generating significant competitive advantage for our clients. With our global coverage, extensive client base, distribution network and our emphasis on knowledge leadership, we play a key role in the sustainability movement. In addition to the significant opportunities represented to all companies in greening operations, product and service offerings, there are considerable business risks in not doing so. We are empowering our people to generate sustained economic and ecological value for our clients and investors and social value for our communities.

Colliers is a Global Partner of the World Green Building Council. We provide leadership and strategic input for sustainability initiatives on a global basis, support national green building organizations, participate in the development of emerging green building councils and share research, knowledge and best practices globally.

Leadership in sustainability must start at home. We are measuring and reducing our footprint as a company and providing our people with the knowledge to do the same on an individual level.

To Colliers, sustainability represents new opportunities for growth and vitality in business, society and our individual lives. We are inspired to rise to the global challenge we all face today and are committed to helping improve the legacy of our global society.
